

This Lotte Lehmann Chronology is divided into four parts:

1. LL's studies and Hamburg Opera years (1888-1916);
2. Vienna Opera years (1916-1938);
3. US opera/recital years (1938-1951);
4. Teaching years (1951-1976).

No chronology for such an active artist as Lotte Lehmann is ever complete. New information about her performances regularly surfaces and will certainly appear in the future. Only a few master classes are included. The same can be said for the many operas Lehmann stage-directed at the Music Academy of the West. Almost complete information can be gathered from opera institutions such as Hamburg, Vienna, San Francisco and the Metropolitan, where complete records are available, but concerts and recitals are a different matter and the sources are especially meagre for the active European recital portion of Lehmann's career. There were three opera venues in Berlin and since they are in transition now, their archives are not available, so LL's Berlin listings are spotty.

Some of the performances are taken from undated reviews that thus provide only an approximate time frame. In the realm of opera there are often incomplete cast lists, and it is sometimes difficult to know when a certain cast member sang on which performance (especially Covent Garden). From reviews it is often difficult to ascertain names of accompanists or conductors. Frequently the crumbling newspaper accounts are so difficult to read that only approximate names etc. can be reported. These reviews provide only sketchy lists of the songs performed on a recital and no particular order is given. But usually one can expect that Lehmann drew from approximately the same songs during a tour.

There are certainly many more performances than have been compiled in the present list. And even this is astonishing: how often Lehmann sings night after night. (When two performances happen on the same date I provide a "sic" to demonstrate that it's not a typo.) It leaves the reader overwhelmed to consider the stamina (physical and psychological) needed to sing at the exalted level that Lehmann maintained.

In orchestra concert appearances, only those items that Lehmann sang are listed. The orchestra obviously performed other purely instrumental pieces.

Broadcast dates are confusing: the program may have been recorded earlier and broadcast on the date listed.

Note the many famous conductors under whom Lehmann sang: not only the names one comes to associate with Lehmann, such as Otto Klemperer, Arturo Toscanini, Bruno Walter and Franz Schalk, but also Artur (Arthur?) Nikisch, Wilhelm Fürtwängler, Weingartner, Richard Strauss, Clemens Krauss, Szell, Charles Münch, Pierre Monteau, Victor de Sabata, Eugene Ormandy and Maurice Abravanel.

And watch for surprises: the final scene from Salome; Mahler's Symphony No. 4 and Mahler songs with Bruno Walter at the piano; Mousorgsky's Songs and Dances of Death; and seldom performed operas.

We have taken the path of least resistance when it comes to opera titles, using the English form of familiar operas such as "Marriage of Figaro," "Magic Flute," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Merry Wives of Windsor" etc. Also, as a space saving measure, when a Lied has been referred to, we have chosen to use an abbreviated version: "Willst du dein Liebsten sterben sehen" becomes "Willst du..."

During the Hamburg Opera years, there were performances in the "suburb" of Altona and these are noted. The Metropolitan Opera, Vienna Opera and Chicago Opera toured and the city of those performances is also given.

The performers (singers and conductors) are listed with their given names the first time they appear. Opera composers' names are given the first time the opera is listed; the same applies to Lieder composers. Lehmann's name is abbreviated LL; her regular pianists: Ernø Balogh: EB, Paul Ulanowsky: PU; Bruno Walter: BW; Gwendolyn Williams Koldowsky: GK
